

FATIGUE

POPREBEL

FATIGUE-POPREBEL Workshop on

The Different Shades of Populism in Central and Eastern Europe

Corvinus University of Budapest, Budapest, 4 December 2019, C016

Invited discussants:

- Attila Bartha, Hungarian Academy of Sciences and Corvinus University of Budapest
- Zsolt Boda, Hungarian Academy of Sciences and Corvinus University of Budapest
- Péter Gedeon, Corvinus University of Budapest
- József Péter Martin, Transparency International and Corvinus University of Budapest
- Dorottya Szikra, Hungarian Academy of Sciences
- Joanna Orzechowska-Waclawska, Jagiellonian University

10.00-10.10: Welcome and short introduction to the workshop.

10.10-10.30: Presentation by Gábor Vigvári entitled: 'Re-embedding neoliberalism - neoliberal populism in ECE'

10.30-10.50: Presentation by András Tétényi entitled: 'Economic insecurity as a cause for the emergence of populism?'

10.50-11.10: Presentation by István Kollai entitled: 'Impoverishing core regions? Possible economic background of core-periphery political disturbances within CEE countries'

11.10-11.45: Discussion

This project has received funding from the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme under grant agreement No. 765224 and No. 822682.

11.45-12.30: Lunch break

12.30-12.50: Presentation by Paulina Lenik entitled: 'Populist fever in the CEE: a post-communist legacy?'

12.50-13.10: Presentation by Slobodanka Dekic entitled: 'Negotiating Family Politics in the Age of Populism: case studies in B&H, Croatia and Serbia'

13.10-13.45: Discussion

13.45-14.00: Coffee break

14.00-14.20: Presentation by Ionut-Valentin Chiruta entitled: 'Challenging the rule of law in Romania: the metamorphosis of political discourse towards populism as a last resort'

14.20-14.40: Presentation by Krisztina Szabó entitled: 'On a wild-goose chase: Economic populism and economic rationale of populism: Qualitative Text Analysis'

14.40-15.15: Discussion

15.15-15.30: Conclusions

This project has received funding from the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme under grant agreement No. 765224 and No. 822682.